

Caregivers That Deliver also offers a resource of training and videos for individuals and families who provide care for a loved one.

As society ages, families are taking a lead role in providing care for their aging family members. Many who care for their aging parent(s) need help handling their affairs and/or personal care. And, if they're not already doing so, most expect to do so someday.

There are 40.4 million unpaid caregivers of adults ages 65 and older in the United States. Of that group, nine-in-ten are providing care for an aging relative, and a plurality is caring for a parent, according to new data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics.
